BETHEL CO. REVIEWED LAST THURSDAY EVE

The Bethel company of the State Guard Reserve was reviewed last Thursday evening by Dr. George B. Farnsworth on the Gould Academy athletic field. The Doctor was much pleased by the company's appearance and addressed the group briefly. He is much interested in military activities and recently has been appointed a Captain in the State Guard Reserve. He is now organizing an artillery company at Christmas Cove, his summer home.

The local company has been granted the use of the field and new field house for regular drill by the Academy executive committee of which Dr. Farnsworth is chairman, and first met there on Monday evening of last week.

The company is nearing the limit of its enrollment and its new members are making great progress in the elementary drill. The use of the field house during the cold weather will give the men the best possible chance for drill and instruction and is greatly appreciated by the men and the townspeople.

Captain Frank Bean of Bryant Pond attended the regular drill Monday evening, and gave the men additional instruction and new drill. Captain Bean returned recently from a training session with other State Guard officers in Massachusetts.

FIVE POUNDS OF SUGAR ON STAMP NO. 8

Stamp No. 8 of the War Ration Books will be valid for the purchase of five pounds of sugar any time during the 10 week period between Aug. 23 and Oct. 31.

Kenneth B. Backman OPA administrator, asked consumers and dealers to note that this is not a bonus ration. OPA simply has consolidated the five stamps which normally would be worth one pound each during the 10 week period into the stamp No. 8.

Backman said that the period was selected because it terminates at the end of a calendar month, allowing future rationing periods, if desirable, to be set to coincide with the calendar month.

He further added that this method will allow retailers to dispose of sugar stocks now held in 5, 10, and 25 pound packages.

S. S. REGISTRANTS MUST NOTIFY LOCAL BOARDS OF ALL CHANGES IN STATUS

General James W. Hanson, State Director of Selective Service in Maine, again calls to the attention of all registrants their responsibility in keeping their local board informed as to their correct status.

Registrants are required by law to keep their local board informed as to changes of address, employment, marital and dependency status, or other changes which may affect their classification.

Several registrants in Maine have been indicted as delinquent and have experienced inconvenience and expense to themselves because of carelessness in failing to comply with these requirements.

Each registrant is urged to review his own case and, if there have been changes which have not been reported to his local board, to report these changes immediately.

When writing his local board, a registrant should supply his full name, date of birth, order number, and present classification in order that the board may easily identify him and the changes may be noted in his record.

Mr. Barnett suffered fractures of both legs, a concussion, and multiple bruises. One leg was amputated below the knee.

Mr. Barnett had been employed in the mill at Rumford a short time and his family had not yet moved from Upton.

The same car also struck James Taylor of Mexico, who walking a short distance ahead of Mr. Barnett, before crashing into the side of the bridge. Mr. Taylor sustained an injured leg and minor bruises.

Leo Gallant of Mexico, driver of the car, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving when arraigned before Judge Fred Hanscom in Rumford municipal court Monday and the case was continued until Aug. 24.

COUNTY BOND SALES

$132,293 LAST MONTH

War Bond sales in Oxford County in July totaled $132,293, or 74.6 percent of the County quota of $177,200. The State sales were 75.8 percent of the quota and sales for the nation ran to 90.1 percent.

The national quota this month is $830,000,000, and for Maine $4,500,000. The County's August quota is $132,000. Commencing this month, all quotas will be weighed by seasonal factors, and therefore will vary from month to month.

CRAFTSMEN WANTED FOR NAVY CIVILIAN WORK

Because available shipbuilding craftsmen are believed to be all at work on top priority employment, the United States Employment Service office at 132 Congress Street, in Rumford, has issued a call for craftsmen in related lines who can be "converted" quickly to work at urgently needed civilian jobs for the Navy Department in Boston. Helpers and trainees are also needed. It was added in the third Government Personnel Recruitment Bulletin.

Experienced plano-makers, cabinet-makers, house carpenters, shop assembly fabricators of metal products, safe movers, steeljacks, seamen and longshoremen, able to splice wire are among those whose skills are now needed to build America's Navy, Manager Leslie E. Gibson declared. Hundreds of war service appointments through the Civil Service Commission await these and similar craftsmen whose skill has been found closely related to some skill needed for Navy Department jobs for which the U. S. Employment Service offices throughout New England are recruiting.

Those now working at full skill in top priority war jobs are asked not to apply for these positions. Mr. Gibson declared, since the government departments are eager to avoid any waste of production time which would be caused by fruitless job-swapping within war industry.

Definite Curtailment plans were announced for Washington, D. C., and Detroit. The Office of Defense Transportation said local transport systems throughout the country will face the heaviest load in history by mid-September. The ODT prohibited railroads, effective Sept. 15, from hauling refrigerator and box cars carrying civilian freight unless they are loaded to capacity.

A WEEK of The WAR

Lt. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, said American airplanes generally are superior to those of the enemy. He said that in the Pacific theater, since the war started 1,110 Army planes have battled with 1,459 Japanese aircraft and have shot down 190 with loss of only 104. These figures do not include planes destroyed on the ground, those shot down by anti-aircraft fire, Navy and Marine Corps action, or the work of the American volunteer forces in China.

Gen. Arnold said the goal of a 2,000,000-man air force with 185,000 fighting planes would be met. He said the recruitment and training of pilots, bombardiers and navigators is progressing perfectly. There is, however, a growing demand for gunners, various enlisted technicians, radio operators and glider pilots. Gen. Arnold said American planes are arriving in Britain every day in preparation for the aerial offensive against Germany in unison with the R. A. F.

Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of U. S. Army forces in the European theater, said in London that training of U. S. units there must be intensive in all its phases. "This is true," he said, "first, because the time is short, second, because the problems we have demand the ultimate in trained personnel; and, third, because our men must be toughened and hardened physically to stand the most rigorous operations."

The War Front

In the first offensive action by United Nations forces in the Southwest Pacific, U. S. Marines effected landings and then consolidated their positions in the Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands. At the same time, U. S. Army and Allied shore based aircraft from Australia continuously attacked "Japanese air bases and ship concentrations in enemy held harbors" in support of the invasion. Commander in Chief of the U. S. Fleet King reported early in the battle that the U. S. appeared to have had at least one cruiser sunk and two cruisers, two destroyers and one transport damaged, while a large number of enemy planes were destroyed and enemy surface units were put out of action. He said the type of operation being undertaken in the Solomons is one of the most difficult in warfare.

The Navy raised the toll of Japanese ships sunk or damaged in the Aleutians to at least 22 by adding a destroyer to those hit in the surprise attacks of Aug. 8-9 on Kiska harbor. U. S. headquarters in the European theater reported Army Air Force fighters participated with the R. A. F. in 31 sorties off the coast of England in 48 hours ending Aug. 13. Air Forces heavy bombers based in India and China continued destructive raids against the Japanese. The Navy announced the sinking of seven United Nations merchantmen by enemy submarines, the lowest number of such sinkings in the past 16 weeks.

Rationing

Price Administrator Henderson and Petroleum Coordinator Ickes announced jointly that fuel oil rationing on the east coast may be unavoidable next winter. All Eastern motorists were told by the OPA to display their gasoline ration stickers immediately, because "it is illegal for any service station attendant to sell gasoline to a vehicle unless the sticker corresponding to the type of book is conspicuously displayed on the car."

Stabilization of Wages

The National War Labor Board granted an increase of 7½ cents an hour to 61,000 workers in 40 New England and 11 Southern textile mills. The Board denied any wage increase, however, to 32,000 employees in 10 plants of the Aluminum Company of America and 800 workers in the Buffalo (N. Y.) plant of the American Magnesium Company because these workers "had received hourly rate increases sufficient to compensate for the 15 percent increase in the cost of living which had occurred between Jan. 1, 1941, and May, 1942." The Navy, acting under orders from President Roosevelt, took over the strike-bound plant of the General Cable Company in Bayonne, N. J. The strike occurred at the plant, working exclusively on production of war materials, after the NWLB had refused a request for a general wage increase.

The Armed Forces

The Army announced an intensive recruiting campaign to enlist 100,000 skilled mechanics and technicians for service in the Army Air Forces, the Signal Corps and the Ordnance Department. All applicants must be male U. S. citizens between the ages of 18 and 44, inclusive, and all must obtain clearance from their Selective Service Boards. The War Department said it will train dogs as sentries, messengers, pack dogs, airplane spotters and for other purposes. Dog for Defense, Inc., a private organization, will continue to act as the Army's procurement agency and the dogs will be trained at the Quartermaster Remount Depot at Front Royal, Va. The Department announced a reorganization of its various public relations units to eliminate the issuing of conflicting statements.

The Office of Civilian Defense will help recruit full time personnel for the Coast Guard Temporary Reserve for beach patrol and coastal lookout duty. The Navy said it will appoint retailers in designated trading areas to help carry out its plan for controlling the sale of ready-made uniforms to officers or chief petty officers, beginning Oct. 15.

Transportation

Mall deliveries and pick-ups face curtailment in many localities because of lack of men and the need to conserve trucks and tires, the Post Office Department announced.

Portland to Bethel in 1872
How my trip would be from Portland to Bethel in 1872 via the Grand Trunk Railway as taken from "Osgood's New England"

The Grand trunk Railway owned and operated by an Anglo-Canadian corporation. The line is used principally for freight, but it runs one passenger daily. From Portland to Bethel is 70 miles and the running time is about 3 1/2 hours.

"The train leaves the spacious terminal in Portland, near the Victoria Docks, and passing around Munjoy's Hill, crosses the mouth of Back Cove. Thence it runs through the towns of Falmouth and Cumberland, near Casco Bay, then crosses the Maine Central at Yarmouth Junction.

Yarmouth was settled on the Indian Domain of Wescustogo about 1640, and deserted in 1675 and again in 1756 on account of Indian wars. On returning in 1713 the settlers found a young forest covering their fields, farms and roads. Between 1725 and 1756 many of the colonists were killed or captured by the Indians. During the first half of the present century the town grew and prospered, but during the past 20 years it has lost 16% of its population.

New Gloucester is a pretty and prosperous village which was founded by men from Gloucester, Massachusetts about 1735.

Our next station is Mechanic Falls, near a small factory village. The next station is Oxford from which a tri-weekly stage runs to Casco, and Otisfield.

Our next station is South Paris, a busy village, with manufacturers and a large country trade. Daily stages run to Fryeburg by way of Norway and Bridgton; also by the way of Watford. A stage runs to Paris Hill. This is a village on a hill 831 feet high on which are located the Oxford County Buildings. Near by is Mt. Mica, where beautiful specimens of tourmaline are found, together with many other minerals.

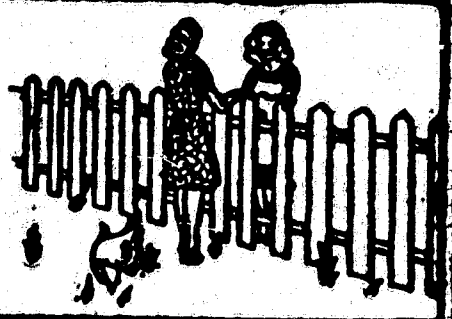

West Paris is a small village, then we reach Bryant Pond from which tri-weekly stages run to Milton Plantation, Rumford and Andover. Rumford has some high hills which yield thousands of bushels of blueberries annually. Rumford Falls has been called the grandest in New England and has suffered but little from improvement. The Bryant Pond station is 760 feet above the sea level and the Pond itself is a pretty highland lake.

The next station is Bethel, a beautiful village in a town of about 2200 population. The broad intervals of the Androscoggin River are outspread here in all their fertility and fairness, while noble views of the White Mountains in the west are obtained from adjacent hills. There are mineral springs in the town and numerous summer boarding houses, also the Chandler House and the Chapman House where comfort, quiet, and abundant country fare are given for the moderate prices of from $8.00 to $10.00 per week. Bethel has often been likened to North Conway on account its mountain views and rich intervals and many city people spend their summers here to enjoy the air, the scenery, and the fine fishing in the vicinity.

Near Bethel is the Albany Basins where the Pequawket River has worn a wonderful series of reservoirs in the taloose rock, the large-

THIS BUSINESS OF Living

BY SUSAN THAYER

To Help Win The War

The kitchens of the nation are in this war too and you and I are soldiers of production. A different kind of production to be sure, from that which is taking place in the plants and factories of the United States, for what we have to produce are health and endurance and good spirits in the members of our families—and in ourselves.

Look at the pots and pans in a shining row above your kitchen tables or stocked neatly in one of your cupboards. They are the tools for your all-important job of producing the right foods for your family. Not foods that merely taste good—although that's important. But foods that deliver all the vitamins, all the mineral salts, all the energy elements a human body needs for functioning on high through long hard days of work.

Instructions for proper nutrition are on every hand today. The food industry is spreading the news in its advertising. Magazines are carrying stories about it. The government is sending out information about it and the Red Cross is holding nutrition classes all over the country.

So let's take our job of food preparation seriously. Let's see that each day's meals contain all of the basic food elements. And if some member of your family is working at a war production job, look after his diet especially. For our war workers need to be on the job every day these coming months, since battles can be won only when there are enough tanks and guns and planes on the fighting front.

At present over 8 million lunches are packed for war workers every day. If one of these lunches comes out of your kitchen, see that it measures up to the standards set by the nutrition experts. See that it contains at least one vegetable and some fruit as well as hearty, energy building sandwiches and a refreshing nourishing drink. See that it's a lunch a man—or woman—can work on. And have it fit in with the meals he eats at home so that the day's intake of food is balanced.

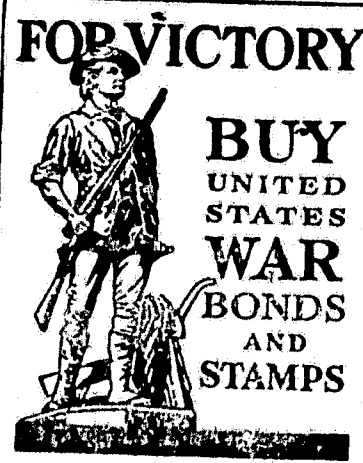

Our food industry, which is sending billions of pounds of food overseas, is still providing us with everything we can possibly need. Let's see that we do our part in using it effectively so that our families will be energetic, confident, cold-free and courageous all this coming fall and winter. Let's stop wishing we could be a WAAC or a WAVE or a worker on the industrial assembly line and do our all important job of food production 100% at home. In that way you and I can help win this war.

est of which is 70 feet deep by 40 feet in diameter.

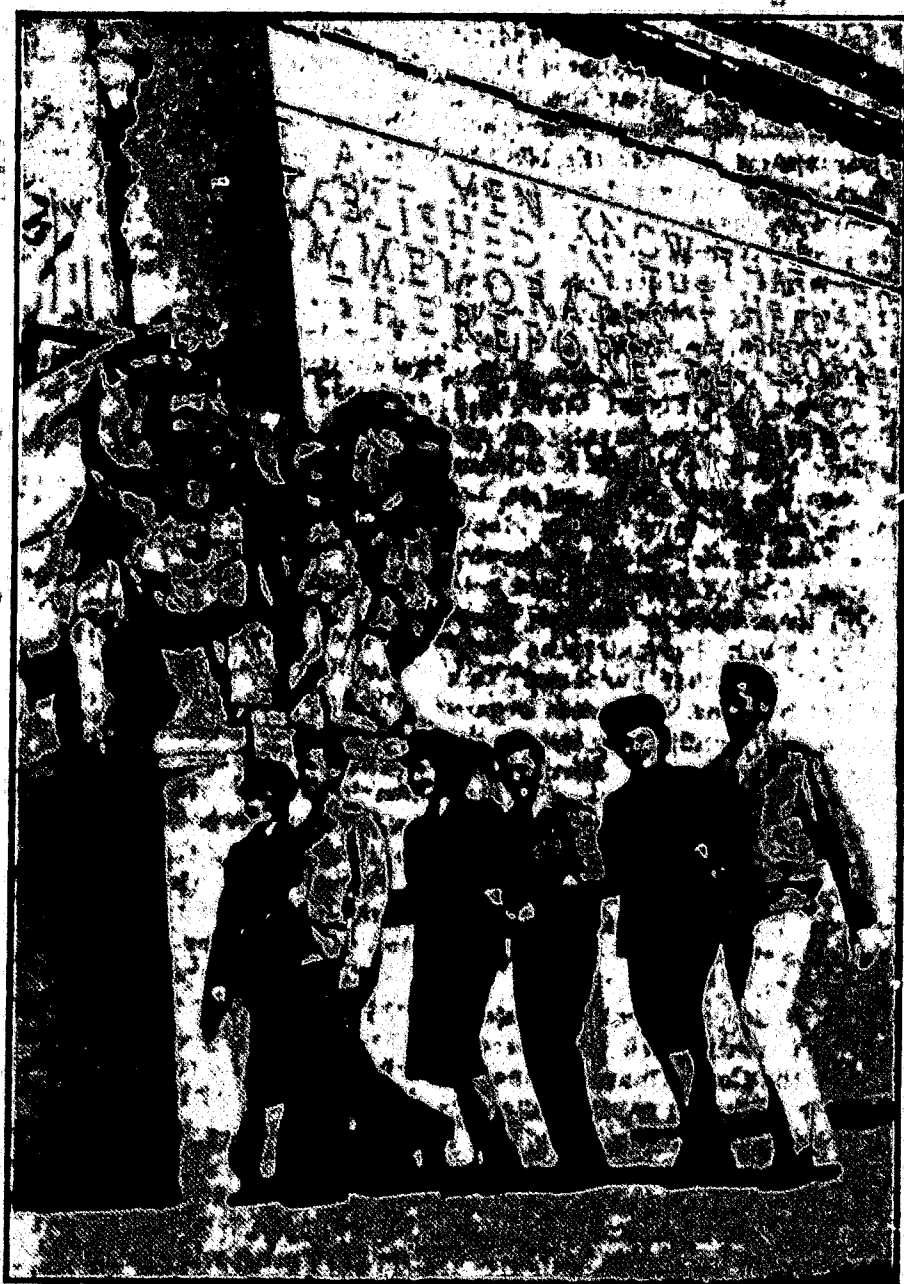

18 miles north east of the village by good roads and through pleasant river scenery, are the Rumford Falls. A semi-weekly stage runs to Upton at the foot of the lake, is 26 miles. The country traversed is mostly through a wild state and thinly populated but affords some striking river and mountain scenery. From Bethel is Colebrook, a distance of about 60 miles (the excursion is not recommended for ladies.)

Bethel was settled in 1773, under the name of Sudbury-Canada and here in 1781 occurred the last Indian depredation in Maine, when a small war party from St. Francis plundered the outlying houses and killed three men and led three prisoners to Canada. Beyond Bethel the train passes the village of West Bethel and so through the glens of Gilead."

Yanks "Down Under"

THREE AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS are led on a sightseeing tour of Melbourne, Australia's second city, by members of the Australian Women's Auxiliary Air Force. Judging from the expression on their faces, they must be having a good time. Reports reaching the U. S. reveal that, in their off-duty periods, thousands of American soldiers and sailors are quickly making friends wherever they go and are being received with the customary open-handed hospitality for which Australians, like Americans, are noted.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SUMMER is the best of all seasons for informal outdoor portraiture—and since pictures of people are among the most satisfying summer snapshots, it would seem foolish not to take advantage of our opportunities at this time.

Every good outdoor portrait should have two obvious characteristics. First, like our illustration, it should be a natural picture and a good likeness of the subject. Secondly, it should be good technically. Work toward those two objectives and you won't go far wrong at any time.

To produce a natural picture you should show your subject just as others know him. It can't be an obviously posed picture in which the subject appears stiff and uncomfortable. He should seem relaxed and apparently unaware of the camera although he may be looking directly at it.

Therefore, put your subject at ease. Don't fuss. Usually it's sufficient to tell him where you want him to sit, stand or work, and roughly what you want him to do. Then let him go ahead without any more interruptions from you than are absolutely necessary.

Of course, you should have a good setting for your outdoor portraits. For instance, an elderly lady would look right at home in a rocking chair; a farmer would seem at ease leaning on the handle of his plow or a weatherbeaten fence. For the more formal types of outdoor portraiture the background should really be quite simple and plain, but there again you don't have to fuss and worry. If you can't find a plain or stuccoed wall, there's always the sky—and you couldn't ask for a better background than that.

Technically, just stick to good exposure, sharp focus, and good development and printing—and you won't find it any more difficult to make outstanding informal portraits than you would any other type of snapshot.

Different types of fireplaces were built and explained by the assistant 4-H club leader, Mrs. Gladys Tyler. Each 4-H club member, along with the Farm Bureau members, cooked the meal out-of-doors after receiving instruction. The leader, Mrs. Edith Howe, discussed the filling out of the story substitution sheets to

How to make your rubber footwear last longer

Follow these four simple suggestions:—1. Put on and take off carefully. 2. Wash outer surfaces after each wearing. 3. Dry out linings in room temperature—away from direct heat. 4. Store in a cool, dry, dark place. Make sure that footwear is free from folds or wrinkles.

It will pay you to pack your winter footwear away as carefully as you do your winter woollens. Remember, a small amount of care will make your rubber footwear last longer.

The merchants of any center are identified especially with the interests of those living in their localities and therefore you will find those most interested telling of their wares and services in their home newspapers.

Thus it is to the advantage of every Citizen reader to do business with our advertisers. You will find them sincerely interested in the welfare of their customers, and often able to advise regarding suitable merchandise and to secure desired goods which may be out of stock.

Business and social stationery, or any form of printed matter, is an accurate reflection of the taste and standing of any person or company. Thus it behooves one to see that all their needs in this line are cared for correctly.

In many cases good printing costs but little if any more than slipshod work. Workmanship, choice of paper and typography are matters which depend very much upon experience, and this experience often leads to economies of production which may result in lower prices for superior results.

WEST BETHEL UNION CHAPEL

Rev. Don Fife, Minister
Last year the churches of our nation set aside a certain Sabbath to be observed as a "Prayer for Peace" Day. Today, we find our nation in the midst of another world war. Immediately the question comes to our minds, as it does in many other of life's situations: "Does God answer prayer?" Among the many problems of life that confront people today, as in days past, is that of "Unanswered Prayer." Join us this coming Sunday at 11 a. m. to consider this important theme.

As we gather in the evening at 7:30 we shall follow the theme: based upon Saint Exupery's book: "The Adventure of Ascending." "Wind, Sand, and Stars." A text in Luke calls to us, saying: "Friend, go up higher."

One week before Youth Sunday, we find that several members of our Sunday School have memorized the books of the New Testament. These are: Patricia Rolfe, Elizabeth Davis, Virginia, Prudence and Jacqueline Lathrop, John Head, and Charles Smith. Aug. 30, our Sunday School will present its annual Children's Day Program at 11 a. m. In the evening of this same Sabbath, the H-School Fellowship will present a special Candlelight Service in our Chapel, at the regular 7:30 hour. You are reminded to watch for your family's invitation to one of our Front-Room Fellowships.

HUSTON-KING

Last Sunday afternoon at a four o'clock ceremony, Miss Sally Ann King, daughter of Mrs. Harry H. King and the late Mr. King, became the bride of Roland Huston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Huston of Freedom, N. H. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Frank R. Green of Portsmouth, N. H., and took place in the library which was decorated with white gladioli and lighted tapers in white wrought iron candelabra.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Harry H. King. The maid of honor was Miss Mary Huston and the best man was Alfred Huston, sister and brother of the groom.

The bride wore a gown of sheer ivory linen with a short train and carried a shower bouquet of white garden flowers with a matching coronet in her hair. The maid of honor wore a period gown of hyacinth blue organza and carried an old fashioned bouquet with matching flowers in her hair.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Corporal John R. King, who came up from Fort Jackson, S. C., for his sister's wedding and Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Eckman of Andover, Mass., and Kennebunk Beach, Maine. Mrs. Eckman was the former Marjorie Green, whose father at one time owned the Prospect Inn, Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Huston left on a wedding trip to Connecticut and New York, after which they will make their home in Portsmouth, N. H.

MAINE IN WASHINGTON

(from the office of Senator Ralph O. Brewster)

Rations for the Nation

Washington has heard from New England this past week in no uncertain terms as the New England Governors assembled in Augusta as the guests of Governor Sewall to discuss the gasoline and fuel problems.

The New England Governors, Republicans and Democrats alike, joined in vigorous protests against continued unlimited joy-riding with gasoline in the Mid-West while the essential activities in the East are more and more seriously curtailed by restrictions upon gasoline.

At first it was contended that restricting use of gasoline in the Mid-West would not help the East so far as transportation was concerned. This argument did not hold water very long. Whatever tank cars are used to transport gasoline to supply joy-riders in the Mid-West could otherwise be used to supply essential activities in the East. Every single tank car would help in some measure to relieve the shortage.

The next ingenious suggestion from the Mid-West, and this was voiced by a representative of the oil companies at the Governors' Conference in Augusta, developed the idea that gasoline was a by-product of fuel oil and that restriction on the use of gasoline in the West would mean that it would be impossible to produce fuel oil for the East. Here again the rationing advocate seemed to miss the point that we would be quite willing to use this surplus gasoline in the East. In fact this is the point about which all the controversy has raged.

First they say the use of gasoline in the West does not use up tank cars. Our answer is to let us use the tank cars that are now servicing the Mid-West. Next they say gasoline is a by-product of fuel oil. We say, then let us have both the fuel oil and gasoline that we require for our essential activities.

Baruch Committee

The Baruch Committee with President Conant of Harvard and President Compton of M. I. T. (two New England men and institutions) are now preparing a report on the synthetic rubber question which is closely related to the problem of restrictive gasoline. This report may afford the ladder by which the President may climb down from his utterly untenable position in refusing to place gasoline rationing on an equitable basis so that all may share the sacrifice alike until after the election. Baruch, Conant and Compton have no political interest to serve.

Gasoline - Rubber Mess

The whole gasoline-rubber mess is an example of the old adage: "O, what a tangled web we weave, When first we practice to deceive."

The President, preoccupied with pressing international problems, suddenly found the gasoline-rubber fiasco barking at his door. To quiet the dog he took the easiest step of consigning gasoline rationing to the East, contrary to the recommendation of both Donald Nelson and Leon Henderson who were the administrative agents in charge. The President rather glibly told his press conference that no one knew anything about the rubber or gasoline situation and he was going to look into it for himself. After a little examination interrupted by many critical foreign problems the President found himself sinking

MAINE HANDWORK TO BE FEATURED IN N. Y. EXHIBIT

Fine examples of handwork from the looms and needles of Maine women will be featured at the Nineteenth Annual Woman's International Exposition of Arts and Industries at Grand Central Palace in New York, October 26-31.

The first prize for the outstanding piece of needlework by an amateur will be $1,000, with 33 additional prizes amounting to $1,925.

Finalists for the New York competition will be selected at the needlework exhibition in the Maine State Fair at Lewiston, September 7-12. For this event Woman's Day Magazine is offering sweepstakes prizes in each of these classes: crewel work, patchwork, hooking, cross-stitch, knitting, applique, quilting, crochet, weaving, needle-point and outline embroidery.

steadily deeper into the quicksands of public suspicion and distrust and turned to Chief Justice Stone as the only public official commanding popular confidence to rescue the President and the country from the morass. Chief Justice Stone resolutely refused to be drawn into the controversy in justice to both himself and the Supreme Court. The President accordingly in desperation turned to the Baruch Committee and it is hoped the Baruch Committee may shortly re-establish some measure of public confidence in the realities of the rubber and gasoline shortage.
